ANSWERS TO SUPPLEMENTARY PROBLEMS—CHAPTER 2

96. a. The earned income credit is not available in 2019 to taxpayers whose disqualified income (interest, dividends, net rental income, etc.) exceeds $3,500. It also is not available to anyone who is claimed as a dependent, or is married and files married filing separately. An unmarried taxpayer with no qualifying child, who works and is at least 25 and younger than 65 years of age, qualifies for the earned income credit, subject to earned income and AGI phase-outs. Taxpayers who work and have a "qualifying child" can qualify for the earned income credit, regardless of age, but subject to earned income and AGI phase-outs. A qualifying child need not be the taxpayer's dependent, but the child must meet the relationship test, age test, residency test, and the citizenship test used in defining a "qualifying child." However, the child may provide over half of his or her own support. ¶204.11.
- b. A refundable credit offsets the taxpayer's tax liability, but it entitles the taxpayer to a payment from the government when the amount of the credit exceeds the liability. In contrast, a nonrefundable credit can offset only the taxpayer's tax liability. When such credits exceed the tax liability, there is no payment for the excess. The earned income credit and the premium tax credit are examples of a refundable credit. Examples of nonrefundable credits are the child and dependent care credit, adoption credit, and the retirement savings contributions credit. ¶203.04.
