101. Name and describe four important differences in the nature of the offering provided by services retailers compared with merchandise retailers.

Intangibility Services are generally intangible-customers cannot see, touch, or feel them. They are performances or actions rather than objects.
Simultaneous Production and Consumption Products are typically made in a factory, stored and sold by a retailer, and then used by consumers in their homes. Service providers, on the other hand, create and deliver the service as the customer is consuming it.
Perishability Because the creation and consumption of services are inseparable, services are perishable. They can't be saved, stored, or resold. This is in contrast to merchandise that can be held in inventory until a customer is ready to buy it.
Inconsistency Merchandise is often produced by machines with very tight quality control so that customers are reasonably assured that, for example, all boxes of a cereal will be identical. Because services are performances produced by people (employees and customers), no two services will be identical.

106. Department stores are diverse and can be categorized into 3 tiers. Describe each tier and give an example of a retailer (for each tier).

The first tier includes upscale, high-fashion chains with exclusive designer merchandise and excellent customer service, such as Holt Renfrew in Canada and Nordstrom in the United States. Hudson's Bay represents the second tier of upscale department stores, in which retailers sell more modestly priced merchandise with less customer service. The value-oriented third tier-Kohl's caters to more price-conscious consumers.

110. Explain why it is so difficult to be successful in catalogue retailing.

Catalogue retailing appears easy to manage as start-up costs are lower than say traditional bricks and mortar retailing. The reality is that it is challenging because catalogue retailers are competing against retailers that are multi-channelled. Mailing and printing costs are high and increasing. The time it takes to design, develop and distribute catalogues is too lengthy…catalogue retailers can't respond to trends and fashions fast enough.

111. List and explain at least four trends that are rapidly changing the retail industry.

Empowered, discriminating consumers. Consumers can make informed decisions with the increased access to product information, price comparisons, and user reviews, and then widely share their experiences with others.

Explosion of consumer data The enormous amount of data generated by points of sale, social media, corporate websites, and tracking URLs is greater than the ability of many retailers to exploit the potential value of this input.

Scientific retailing By applying smart algorithms and deep, data-driven analytics to the massive amounts of data, retailers are able to maximize all aspects of their business, including pricing, assortments, shelf displays, staffing, and warehouse space.

Ubiquitous connectivity It has never been more critical for retailers to integrate digital opportunities into the shopping experience, with the Internet available at work, at home, and on the go (mobile). Digital and physical experiences are converging, with shoppers expecting interactive, value-added experiences anytime, anywhere, and through any channel.

113. As retailers try to satisfy today's ever-changing consumer, many are realizing that big is not always better. Explain and give examples to what is influencing this.

More and more North American retailers are turning to the smaller format concepts that have been trending in Europe, Asia, and Latin America. Real estate is not always available for big-box players; populations are shifting; and the Web is having a significant impact on consumer in-store expectations and shopping processes. Rona is moving to reduce the number of its big-box locations from 80 to 57 and is focusing its expansion efforts on smaller-format neighbourhood stores.

114. The primary issue facing food retailers in general, and supermarket and convenience store retailers in particular, is the increasing level of competition from other types of retailers List type of retailers that are competing with them and give examples. Explain and give examples how food retailers are responding to this treat.

Other retailers such as department stores, drugstores, convenience stores, gas stations, and even dollar stores are increasingly displaying food items on their shelves. In addition, fast-food restaurants such as Subway sandwich shops have positioned themselves as a healthy food alternative.
In response to these competitive pressures, convenience stores are taking steps to decrease their dependency on gasoline sales, tailoring assortments to local markets, and making their stores even more convenient to shop. To get gasoline customers to spend more on other merchandise and services, convenience stores are offering more fresh food and healthy fast food that appeals to today's on-the-go consumers, especially women and young adults. For example, Mac's combines a convenience store and takeout restaurant. Mac's has ready-to-heat meals, a sandwich bar, salads, and a ready-to-eat section.

118. Describe and give examples how specialty stores tailor their retail strategy towards their specific market segments.

Retailers tailor their strategy by offering deep but narrow assortments along with knowledgeable sales staff. For example, West 49 retails action sports clothing that had its origins with young skateboard enthusiasts. West 49 has very specific strategies to make sure that it appeals to the under-16 demographic. For example, the mall is a perfect location for this retailer because the target age group does not drive and usually relies on a parent to drop them off at the shopping centre.
