56)a. The events leading up to the passage of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act include:

- A large number of misstatements of financial statements, many of which resulted from fraudulent financial reporting. Notably including WorldCom and Enron.
- The conviction of the Big 5 accounting firm of Arthur Andersen on charges of destroying evidence.

b. The major reforms made the Act include:

- Tougher penalties for fraud.
- Restrictions on the types of consulting services that may be provided by auditors to their public audit clients.
- The creation of the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board to establish auditing standards and oversee accounting firms that audit public companies.
- Requirements for management to make an assertion about the effectiveness of internal control.
- Requirements for auditors of public companies to audit and report on internal control.

Principles of Auditing and Other Assurance Services 22nd Edition by Whittington

57)a. Management has primary responsibility for the fairness of the financial statements and internal control.

b. The auditors are responsible for performing an independent audit of the financial statements and issuing a report on them in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards.

c. The statement is false. The notes to the financial statements should contain only representations of management. The auditors should express their reservations in their report.

58)a. Audits add credibility to the financial statements of the company. The individual can invest in the company knowing that there is a low probability that the financial statements depart materially from generally accepted accounting principles. Audited financial statements facilitate this transaction by reducing risk related to the investment. Specifically, audits reduce information risk-the risk that information used to make the investment decision is misstated-related to the financial statements. Audited financial statements do not directly affect business risk, which is the risk that the company will not be able to meet its financial obligations.

b. The potential consequences of not having an audit are:

- If the investor is particularly risk averse, he or she may not invest in the company at all.
- If the investor decides to invest in the company, he or she will not be willing to pay as high a price because the investor will want to be compensated for the additional risk that is involved in relying upon unaudited financial statements.
