ESSAY

60 : Discuss the difference between a hypothesis and a theory in the context of criminology.

Correct Answer : ? A hypothesis is a statement of relationship between two researchers, which can be tested.? A theory is a hypothesis that has been tested and accepted by researchers as a plausible explanation for criminal behavior.

61 : Explain the steps in the scientific method.

Correct Answer : Observation: Crime occurs. The study of crime, or criminology, is rich with different reasons as to why people commit crimes. However, criminologists, or those who study the causes of crime, warn against using models or profiles to predict violent behavior.Hypothesis: A possible explanation for an observed occurrence that can be tested by further investigation.Test: Correlation between two variables means that they tend to vary together. Causation, in contrast, means that one variable is responsible for the change in the other.Verification: Four of my neighbors have the same morning class.Theory: A theory is an explanation of a happening or circumstance that is based on observation, experimentation, and reasoning.Prediction. Predict what will occur in the future. Predictions are tests of your theory.

62 : Explain the connection between classical criminology and choice theory.

Correct Answer : ? Choice theory hold that those who commit crimes choose to do so.? Classical criminology is based on a model of a person rationally making a choice before committing a crime – weighing the benefits against the costs.

63 : Contrast positivism with classical criminology.

Correct Answer : ? Classical criminologists believe that criminals choose to commit crimes, after a rational decision making process through which they weigh the benefits of the criminal activity with the potential costs.? Positivists believe that criminal behavior is not the result of rational decision making, rather it is determined by psychological, biological, or social forces.

64 : How does brain-scanning technology help scientists determine if an individual is at risk for criminal offending?

Correct Answer : - mapping the human brain- brain scanning shows that criminal behavior is often associated with a smaller-than-average amygdala- those with low activity in the anterior cingulate cortex were twice as likely to commit a crime as those with high activity in this area of the brain- Brain scans cannot predict future criminal offending. They can only indicate a possibility of future criminal offending.

65 : List and briefly describe the three theories of social structure.

Correct Answer : ? Social disorganization theory purposes that crime is caused by zones of disorganization within communities.· Strain theory argues that crime is caused by the strain people experience when they are unable to meet their goals of wealth through legal means.· Cultural deviance theory asserts that people adapt their behavior to the values of the subculture to which they belong.

66 : List and briefly describe the three branches of social process theory.

Correct Answer : ? Learning theory contends that offenders learn criminal behavior from their family and peers.? Control theory holds that the bonds people form with family and peers serve to prevent criminal offending.? Labeling theory suggests that assigning an individual a negative label will result in that person becoming what he or she has been labeled.

67 : Why do life course theorists believe the key to criminal offending lies in childhood?

Correct Answer : ? Life course theorists believe there is a link between childhood behavior and criminal offending and that the roots of criminality can be identified in the childhood behaviors of lying, stealing, and bullying.

68 : What is dopamine, and how does it impact addiction?

Correct Answer : Dopamine is the neurotransmitter responsible for delivering pleasure signals to brain nerve endings in response to behavior that makes us feel good. The role of dopamine in the brain is critical to addiction. The bloodstream delivers drugs to the area of the brain that produces dopamine, thereby triggering the production of a large amount of the substance in the brain. Over time, the continued use of drugs physically changes the nerve endings, called receptors. To continue operating in the presence of large amounts of dopamine, the receptors become less sensitive, meaning that greater amounts of any particular drug are required to create the amount of dopamine needed for the same levels of pleasure.

69 : Contrast the medical model of addiction with the criminal model of addiction. Explain which model you agree with more and why.

Correct Answer : ? Those who subscribe to the medical model of addiction believe that addicts are not criminals, but mentally or physically ill individuals who are forced into petty crimes to support their drug habits.? Those in favor of the criminal model of addiction believe that abusers and addicts pose a danger to society and should be treated just like any other criminal offender.

70 : Jeremy lives in a very high-crime neighborhood that has seen many violent acts over the past several months.
