Essay

1. Define alienation according to Karl Marx. Then, identify the worst job that you have had. Was it alienating according to his definition?

Ans: Varies, but should include the following:

- According to Marx, capitalism perverts our labor, transforming what should be a reason or purpose of our lives and instead directs it against the human self.
- Alienation is the breakdown of and separation from the natural interconnection between people and their productive activities, the products they produce, the fellow workers with whom they produce those things, and what they are potentially capable of becoming.

Students should address each component of alienation:

- That is, did they own what they produced?
- Could they produce how they pleased or was that controlled?
- Did their work separate them from others? Was the work dehumanizing?

2. Explain Émile Durkheim's theory of suicide, listing and describing each type identified by Durkheim. Then, discuss a recent suicide of someone in the news in light of Durkheim's theory. (While Durkheim's theory does not explain individual acts, what social facts are present in this story that link to his typologies?)

Ans: Varies, but should include the following:

- Durkheim detailed the social causes of suicide, identifying four typologies:
 - Anomic suicide: A type of suicide that occurs when people do not know what is expected of them, where regulation is low, and they are largely free to run wild.
 - Egoistic suicide: A type of suicide that occurs when people are not well integrated into the collectivity and are largely on their own; they feel a sense of futility, meaninglessness, and more of them feel that they are morally free to kill themselves.
 - Altruistic suicide: A type of suicide that occurs when people are too well integrated into the collectivity; they are likely to kill themselves in greater numbers because the group leads them, or even forces them, to do so.
 - Fatalistic suicide: A type of suicide that occurs in situations of excessive regulation (e.g., slavery), where people are often so distressed and depressed by their lack of freedom that they take their own lives more frequently than otherwise.
- Examples will vary regarding typology linkages. The media often covers mental illness and psychological causes.

3. Define the protestant ethic. Explain how it arose, how it evolved into the spirit of capitalism, and how it has since given rise to an "iron cage" of rationality.

Ans: Varies, but should include the following:

- The protestant ethic was a Calvinist moral doctrine where individuals worked hard to show God's favor.
- The spirit of capitalism valued hard work, wealth, and success as inherent ends.
- Today, we are trapped in an iron cage that claims hard work and success seem like rational, moral things, but are just required of a social system that is largely neither moral nor rational.
